MONDAY MORNING, NOV. 20.

nd & Pittsburg Road--Change of Time. A new time table goes into effect on the Cleveland and Pittsburg railroad

A meeting of several prominent busi-ness men, merchants and others, took ness men, merchants and county, upon an order the or less in rebellion. nestion of rents. There was a free and interchange of opinion noise question of real estate values and business prospects for the uing. There was an entire conprotesting sentiment, in regard to sevetances of proposed advance in iThe present status of rents was be as high as legitimate busicould warrant, and higher in proportion than was paid in Pittsburgh and other large cities. Indeed instances were quoted where eligible business in : Pittsburgh were actually renting at lower rates than similar property similarly situated in Wheel-This state of things had been ght about by temporary bids and gements on the part of houses not med to be permanent, citizenized honses, and as such were neither legitimate nor representative in their charac-ter, and such as regular firms could not and ought not to stand. A determination to retire from business ather than pay advances asked, was end. The effect was to drive capital out of business. Rents were now paying unusual dividends over and above all taxes and expenses, and yet it was proease them. And this too in the face of uncertain events. There was no telling what shape business would take in a few weeks. There were good reasons for expecting contraction in all values. Sagacious men were tak-ing in rather than putting out sail, and ce their views were diametrically ed to incurring increased exas condition all over the country.

The foregoing is the substance of much that was said at the meeting. It is proposed to hold a still larger meetand to formally consider the whole ore at length.

WE have what we consider rathers d thing on the Richmond Enquirer and Charlestown "Spirit of Jefferson."
They both publish from the INTELLI-GENCER, with many laudations, the letter of our old friend "G. Parker," dated at Wellsburg, Sept. 13th last, in rela-tion to the status of Berkley and Jefferson counties. This document they herald o the world as an emenation from the to the world as an emenator from the brain and pen of "Hon. G. Parker," a gentleman who was once a Judge, and now has a law school we believe at Winchester. Our old iriend is altogether chester. Our old friend is intogether worthy of the consideration they give him, and we are pleased to see their ap-preciation of his letter, even though it expressed by mistake. If the editors had read it closely however, they would have seen that Mr. Parker is really anxious to save the two counties of Rerkeley and Jefferson to the State of West Virginia and not to hand them over to old Virginia as they seem to counties are not part and parcel of the new State, yet he is solicitous that they should become such through the action of Congress at its approaching session.

ed us under very unusual circum-stances, and in the midst of an extra-sardinary and perilous crisis. We have passed through a bloody struggle with those with whom we had been previ-ously associated as follow-citizeus, as members of the same great-republic, as decendants of the same glorious ancesover to old virginia as they seem to imagine. While he has no doubt of the correctness of Mr. Dawes opinion, in the same God, and believing the correctness of Mr. Dawes opinion, in the same revelation. How sad the viz: that a bloody strife should have event, that a bloody strife should have existed among a people so situated, and looking back to the same scenes of pride and glory which illuminated our past history! How sadder still to think that, at the end of such a contest, our country—I mean that portion of it which we call the South—is prostrated; all its enterprises crippled, its pursants disorganized, its inbor destroyed, its agriculture rendered inefficient and unreductive, all our permanent investments.

insult even to question their right to represent Tennessee in Congress. They will without doubt be admitted, but not until they and their State have passed the same ordeal which will be enforced upon all the States that have been more or less in rebellion.

A corressorder writes to an Essiern paper, that though the people of Georgia seem to be loyal, the Convention gives no proof of this quality, and that it had been better it had never met. The great trouble was that the Convention was composed of men who dared not face the real vital issues of the day, and come squarely up to the mark on the question of secession, emancipation and repudiation. Thus, when the ordinance of secession, emancipation and repudiation. Thus, when the ordinance of secession, emancipation and repudiation. Thus, when the ordinance of secession, emancipation and repudiation. Thus, when the ordinance of secession was abolished, because the United States Government had declared slaves free "as a war measure," and the ordinance concluded as follows:

Provided, this acquiescence in the action of the Government of the United States is not intended to operate as a relinquishment, or waver, or estopel of such claim for compensation of loss, sustained by reason of the emancipation of his slaves, as any citizen of Georgia may hereafter make upon the justless and magnetic the departed. This measure was not made a part of the Constitution.

Comparisons are drawn between the Conventions of Georgia and of Alabama, by way of illustrating the difference in their tempers. In the latter Convention, on the last week of its existence, a resolution memoralizing the President in favor of Jeff. Davis was referred to a committee and never called up. In Georgia the first, thing done was to send a memoral to the President in behalf of the rebel chief. This sort of spirit animated the Georgia Convention throughout.

Before the Convention closed, its President, Mr. Hersehel V. Johnson, made an address, a part of which we was performed by some called the movement and the property both in the eity and property, both in the eity Before the Convention closed, its president, Mr. Hersehel V. Johnson, made an address, a part of which we published on Thursday. One passage further we quote now. It is full of bitterness as it is full of truth. He said:

We have performed the labors assiguwhich the Convention of the State authorities, to protect the people. Already the insecurity of the sum of the State authorities, to protect the country has driven into the towns and sid:

We have performed the labors assigumore first than the first that some system will be or particulated by the sum of the State authorities, to protect the country has driven into the towns and winter, thousands who might have been more than the sum of the state of the South, to suffer during this winter, thousands who might have been more than the sum of the sum comfortable in their county homes. In the country there are at least shelter and fuel; in this city both are already so dear as to be almost beyond the reach of any but the affluent.
